State Bank & Trust Company Contributes to Camp Noah SBT offers disaster kits, a monetary donation and volunteers

Waverly, IA (July 2009) — State Bank & Trust Company and their employees found no better way to contribute to their community as Camp Noah pitched their tent in Waverly this week. SBT offered disaster kits, a monetary donation and volunteers to assist throughout the duration of Camp Noah; a camp intended to help kids affected by last June's record setting floods.

"With the basement of our Main Bank location receiving more than 5 feet of water, as well as damage at our New Hartford location, the flood is still on our minds here at SBT," said Kristin Underwood, Marketing Director, State Bank & Trust Company. "We understand it's not an easy thing to forget and we know the kids that were affected in our community need an outlet to discuss what they went through," Underwood stated.

Through SBT's volunteer efforts at Camp Noah, many employees have realized the circumstances those children affected are dealing with today. "I was amazed to hear some of the stories they shared about their experience that they are just now telling. Many of the kids still do not have permanent homes and are still without many of their belongings," said Carolyn Kielman, State Bank employee & Camp Noah volunteer. "It's heart-wrenching to realize what they and their families have had to go through," Kielman added.

As a local bank, we're vested in our community and understand what it's like to be flooded. It's important to us that we help them get through the difficult times since they are the future of our community.
